

Parent/Guardian Collaboration and Connection Group for Responding to Challenging Behaviors During Distance Learning

Distance Learning can be CHALLENGING.. The challenges can vary from trying to maintain consistent schedules to responding to noticeable changes in childrens' behavior. Many students may be showing their frustration about distance learning by arguing with guardians, avoiding class work in various ways, and sometimes more disruptive behaviors that may feel surprising. Some of the behaviors can catch us by surprise and can be very challenging for parents and guardians to navigate.

If your child is struggling with their behavior during distance learning, you are not alone. The school psychologists and counselors in Bethel are teaming up to offer support. Based on input from families, we are offering three opportunities for parents and guardians to collaborate and get ideas for working through some of these challenges. Our team will share ways to prevent and respond to these behaviors, as well as offer guardians some time to share and collaborate with each other through open discussion, regarding the challenges families are facing, ideas that have worked, and come up with new solutions.

We are offering multiple groups throughout the year, with three different time and day options. Participants will be entered into a raffle for a $100 gift card.
